

CONFERRNCING

Getting people meeting without moving

With the pressures of the credit crunch, SMEs are keen to find new ways to cut costs. Avaya IP Office delivers an important one by putting the ability to arrange and manage conference calls right into their own hands, whenever they want them.

Getting people together like this is a simple but effective method of reducing travel costs and the time wasted en route – as well as improving carbon footprints and sustainability credentials. And there can be significant business efficiencies in the collaborative working, information exchanges and faster decision-making that conferencing can make possible.

The phone system also offers a Scheduler interface, making it easy to both book conferences in advance and invite participants by email, or set up instant get-togethers. The integral Web Client can combine voice calls with online documents and presentations to create a fully audio-visual experience.
